Government Actuary's Department appoints new non-executive director

Alex Jablonowski has been appointed as a non-executive director to the Board of the Government Actuary's Department (GAD).

As a non-executive Board Member, Mr Jablonowski will play a key role in supporting and constructively challenging executive members of the Board, and will provide an external perspective to the Government Actuary on the strategic direction of the Department's work.

Welcoming Mr Jablonowski, Trevor Llanwarne, the Government Actuary, said: "With his experience in both the private and public sectors, Alex will be a valuable addition to the Board and I am delighted that he is joining us"

Editor's notes

1 Alex Jablonowski has a wide range of experience gained across the public and private sectors, with a strong track record in financial, risk and audit management. Following a successful career in the banking industry, most notably as a divisional CEO at Barclays Bank, he now holds a number of non-executive posts within government.

2 As a non-executive Director at GAD, Mr Jablonowski replaces Graham Bartlett whose contract comes to an end in November.

3 The Government Actuary's Department (GAD) is an actuarial consultancy which has been working within government for almost a century. GAD offers actuarial services to governments and public sector organisations, in the UK and around the world, covering pensions, social security and insurance. Based in London, GAD employs 140 people, of whom 50 are qualified actuaries.
